

LIBERTY BELL RECEIVED WITH STY WELCOME

Engines Whistle as the Famous Relic Reaches the Terminal Yards, While a Thousand Children Cheer From the Midway at the Station.

RELIC IS TAKEN TO FAIR UNDER BRILLIANT ESCORT

Ceremonies in the Grounds Were Participated in by Sixty Thousand School Children of St. Louis, Who Are Admitted Free.

On a patriotically decorated float drawn by 12 solemn steel gray horses and escorted by the mayors of two cities, with representatives of their municipal governments, stately mounted police and distinguished visitors, Liberty Bell began its march to the Fair shortly after 1 o'clock
Wednesday afternoon.

Its procession was a triumphal one, and
lay through a lane of cheering thousands,
who felt themselves stirred by the re-
verberating echoes of the song of liberty which its now silent tongue sounded 128
years ago.

Its chariot was a safe-mover's truck,
whose ugly angles were transformed into
the graceful curves of a coach; and the use of bunting and flowers, and from streamers at the four corners of the float patriotic mottoes and war cries of the colonial heroes waivered their praise of liberty.

The 12 horses which draw the Liberty Bell float were bedecked with gorgeous rosettes and plumes and banners in the national colors. On each horse was the name of one of the original states—Pennsylvania, in the lead, and Georgia and Rhode Island at the wheels. The proud animals, their steel-gray coats glistening brilliantly, pranced and danced before their burden, and nodded and waved their bright plumes in seeming delight at the part they were playing.

The long line of the march was covered in something more than an hour, and a few minutes after 2:30 o'clock Liberty Bell
passed through the gates of the parade entrance and met at the Fair, which will be its home for the rest of the summer.

Liberty Bell reached St. Louis at 9 o'clock
Wednesday morning.

At that hour it entered the Terminal yards. For 20 minutes it was crowded backed at the end of the Chicago & Alton train to which its flat car was attached, before being backed into Union Station.

For that 15 minutes it was offered a shower of welcome from every engine
whistle and bell in the yards.

There were 2000 people at Union Station to meet the bell. More than 1000 of them were children. They stood about the station gates for an hour and fifteen minutes
awaiting the arrival of the belated train,
but entirely too patriotic to move away
from whatever favorable position they had gained.

When they heard the engines in the yards whistling and ringing their welcome to the cracked old symbol of liberty, they raised their voices in another chorus of welcome,
and kept it up until the bell was backed
in against the midway.

The bell hung safely in the center of its flag-bedecked flat car, with the four big Philadelphia policemen who are its bodyguard, standing like bluecoated statues at each corner of the car.

James McConkey, private secretary to the mayor, and Wilson H. Brown and Charles K. Longaker, representing the Municipal Assembly, met Mayor John Weaver of Philadelphia and his party, who are the escort of the bell, at Union Station, and took them in 20 carriages to the Jefferson grounds, a detail of mounted police leading the way.

Later in the morning Mayor Wells and his party, which includes his wife and son and about to others, and gave them formal welcome.

The celebration of the arrival of Liberty Bell in St. Louis Wednesday is an official holiday. All the public schools, courts and city offices are closed, and all
city employees except those whose duties
are of an emergency nature have a holiday.

Crowds Watch
the Unloading.

After the departure of the escorting party
from Union Station, the bell was hauled to the corner of Eleventh and Poplar streets, where the work of unloading it was begun. As it passed through the yards, trains slowed up, that their crews might see and cheer it; and the chorus of whistles and bells that have greeted it
since its arrival in the yards was repeated.

The bell, which weighs a ton, was carefully swung by means of a hand crane
from the flat car upon the float, and carefully placed and fastened.

The work of unloading occupied something more than an hour and then the procession started for the Jefferson Hotel.
There was a man in the lead of each of the 12 horses and Philip Schmuck, a pe-riodist St. Louisan, proudly occupied the place of honor as driver.

The ovation given the bell was remarkable. Merchants and their clerks ran out from their stores and cheered it, and all of those who could find the room crowded
to the side of the float and touched their hands against the cold metal of the historic trophy. Street cars stopped while the bell passed and the crowds of people halted, deserted their teams and ran to get a chance to touch the bell.

The procession, marching over Eleventh Market and Twelfth streets, and reached the hotel shortly before 1 o'clock. It was found a crowd awaiting it. Its float was

SAGE OF MAIDEN LANE, 80, TOWED COMELY WIDOW, 55

This Is Swan Asp, Who, Believing Man
Should Not Be Alone, Will Take Sixth Wife

Swan Asp, the sage of Maiden Lane, is to take unto himself another wife. He has made up his mind that it is not good for man to be alone, even though man is 84
years old, but he is to make Mrs. Palisau his sixth wife.

Mrs. Gay says she is 55, but she is plump and rather pretty, and the neighbors of Swan Asp think she is at least ten years younger than she says.

It was four years ago that the fifth wife of the sage of Maiden Lane died. They had been married only six months, and her death was such a severe blow to the old man that he vowed he would not again
take unto himself a companion.

But six weeks ago he was introduced to
Mrs. Gay by the pastor of the church which Mrs. Gay attends, and he began to think that perhaps he had been too hasty in for-swearing matrimony in his eightieth year.

Their acquaintance progressed nicely, and
within a week they were very good friends.
According to the neighbors of Swan Asp,
his was a receptive rather than an aggressive attitude. They say he did not call on the widow Gay, and that all the calling was done by her. She was often at the home of Asp, 331 Maiden Lane.

Three weeks ago Asp, unobserved himself to his next door neighbor. He said he was minded to marry the widow, but she wanted him to deed his property to her before the ceremony was performed, and he didn't like to do that.

"I gave my fourth wife my money," he said, "and when she got it she ran away and left me, and I had to go to the poorhouse."

The neighbor advised him not to deed
anything until after the ceremony, and Asp
said he didn't think he would.

License Suffices
for One Day.

He did not again take his neighbor
into his confidence, but Tuesday afternoon he and the widow Gay wandered their way to the City Hall and obtained a marriage license. He told the clerk he was marrying because he needed somebody to take care of him. The woman said she was 30, and that she was a widow,
but she is not known at that number, and Asp will not tell where she can be found.

The couple were not married Tuesday
afternoon, as the ceremony would take place Wednesday evening or Thursday. They were married at the home of Rev. Mark's Lutheran Church, to marry them because that was the church Asp belonged to.

Mrs. Gay has been married twice before.
Both her former husbands are dead, the second having died over a year ago. She has three daughters and six grandchildren.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, June 8.—The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Weber of 1045 East 16th street came into the world
without eyes, and physicians and eye specialists declare her case is without precedent.

In every other respect the infant is perfectly modeled. Its chubby cheeks show health.

Dr. F. M. Van Orden, who attended the mother, was astonished. The family could not believe that nature had withheld the baby's eyesight and took her to the office of Dr. Gron at Caldwell and Boston avenue, an eye specialist.

His examination showed the entire absence of anything which would suggest an eye. Over the socket in which nature builds the eyeballs, a thin wall of flesh was tightly drawn like a curtain. When this was pulled down, the child's face was Nature apparently had never even begun
the formation of the eye.

The physician had the child taken to the office of Dr. Knapp, another specialist, who was wanted.

CRIPPLE CREEK REGION DECLARED IN REBELLION

Acting Gov. Haggott Puts Lawless
District Under Military Rule and Starts 500 Troops to Scene to Protect Life and Property.

TWENTY-FOUR UNION MEN ARE DEPORTED BY NIGHT

Acting Governor Haggott Puts Lawless District Under Military Rule and Starts 500 Troops to Scene to Protect Life and Property.

VICTOR, Colo., June 8.—Martial law was declared in the Cripple Creek district at 2 o'clock this morning by the posting of Acting Governor Haggott's proclamation at a number of places in the camp. The posting was done under the direction of Adjutant-General Bell, who arrived at Victor
from Denver at an early hour this morning with the proclamation. Conditions in the camp are quiet, according to all accounts. Five hundred troops are on their way to this region.

Gen. Bell has assumed command of the military and control of the district and has called a council of the officers of the local military companies. He has also ordered Col. Verdeckberg, who had charge of affairs in the district when martial law ended there several months ago, to the district.

At 2:30 o'clock this morning Gen. Bell and the mine operators led by Charles M.
MacNeil and C. C. Hamlin started on a secret trip down the Short Line Railway, their destination being unknown, every member taking the greatest precautions to conceal the purpose. No sooner had Gen.
Bell arrived than the trip was suggested.

24 Union Men
Deported From District.

Last night 24 union men were put on a special train and departed from the district.
A guard of deputies rode out of the district with them. The men were residents of the following towns of the district: Cripple Creek, 2; Victor, 3; Independence, 12; Goldfield, 3; Anaconda, 2; Altman, 1. They were all active unionists and served as lawless in the strike now pending. Six additional city officers have been forced to resign. Haggott, visited the union store and William Graham, Night Marshal Fred Harvey and Justice of the Peace Charles Harvey, who were all active unionists. Subsequently they went to union headquarters and destroyed the union records. Their efforts were unavailing.

All of the injured in the accident at Independence and the rioting in Victor are being treated at the hospital. The union has been ordered to take the case away from the district. The union has been ordered to take the case away from the district. The union has been ordered to take the case away from the district.

Clouds Thicken, More Heat

It will be warmer tomorrow; also cloudy.
The present weather is too good to last,
according to pessimists. According to the weather bureau an extensive area of low barometer pressure in the West and Southwest, moving
this way, is responsible.

The forecast:
"Partly cloudy tonight and Thursday;
warmer Thursday;
variable winds."
Normal temperatures prevailed east of the Rocky Mountains this morning.
In the north, plateau region it is still chilly. Frosty weather is reported from Idaho, eastern Montana and Oregon.
Low temperatures
also prevail in the British Northwest.
Rain has fallen in the Ohio valley,
East Gulf states, North and South Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico. Heavy rains fell in Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Magistrate, Who Wouldn't Resign, Is Imprisoned.

Police Magistrate Michael Gibbons,
who refused to resign, was made a prisoner at the Victor military army, where many union miners are also confined. Frank B. Haggott, leading attorney of the Western Federation of Miners
here, has been warned to leave the district.

In all about 200 union members and sympathizers have been arrested by the sheriff and military since Monday. The district is still out and the "house-cleaning" as the authorities term their proceedings, continues.

The records of the unions have been seized whenever found and are under examination for evidence of securing evidence showing that the unions or any of their officers have participated in or approved of crimes that have been committed. In addition to the unearthing of about 30 group photographs of union workers at various mines,
which were concealed in a heap of rubbish in the office of the Altman
union were found quantities of electrical fuses and batteries to produce explosions.

Talk of lynching or violence has subsided to a degree, though if the man who exploded the infernal machine in Independence, killing 15 men, should be captured, it is doubtful whether any military force would protect him. The fury of friends of the murdered man.

The man who killed Rosie McGee at the mine meeting here on Monday has been positively identified by an eye-witness of the shooting and, although he has not been captured, it is believed he cannot escape.

No further acts of violence have been reported among those wounded in the explosion and riots of Monday.

of the simplest character took place today
over the body of Mrs. Samuel L. Clemens,

from sanitary officers and compliance with their regulations. Only members of the family were present. The body was taken to a temporary vault, from which it will be sent to Genoa
New York June 23. Mr. Clemens will go to the United States with the body.

THE VICTIM, DON MANUEL CERVERA

SUNDAY LIQUOR CASE DISMISSED

Daniel Naughton's Plea That He Was Only an Employee Brings Acquittal.

Daniel Naughton, arrested with Michael O'Donnell, the "wells king" for selling liquor on Sunday, was Wednesday morning
acquitted after Judge Moore, in the court of criminal corrections, had refused to take the case from the jury.

Naughton set up the plea that he was merely an employee and had nothing to say about when the saloon should open or close.
The rules and regulations prescribed by Excise Commissioner Seibert were also submitted to the court. Then Naughton's attorney asked that the court dismiss the defendant.

Judge Moore ordered the jury to disregard the rules laid down by Seibert, and
to try the case according to the state evidence. He refused to take the case away from the jury. Naughton's attorney then submitted the case without argument, and in a very few minutes Naughton was acquitted.

Ben Garrett Is Arrested at National Stockyards for Crime Committed in Boiden, I. T.

Ben Garrett, 23 years old, was arrested at the National Stockyards, East St. Louis, Wednesday morning on the charge of having killed Mrs. Maria Cantacosa at Boi-den, I. T., on May 28.

The arrest was made by Detectives Cash-ell and Stocker. They recognized him from a description as he was trying to get a check cashed at the National Stockyards bank on a bank at Boiden.

After he had been taken to the East St.
Louis police station he admitted his identity and confessed that he had killed the woman, but he claimed that he did so in self-defense.

THAT BANDIT ASKED

Will Pay Raisuli $50,000 and Give Him Full Pardon for Past Offenses to Secure Release of Perdicaris and Varley.

He was given to understand that if this was not done marines would be landed and these governments would undertake to punish the outlaw.

France, Italy and Spain also sent warships to Tangier harbor to watch events.
The French government, because of its ascendancy in Morocco, was asked to intervene and try to adjust the difference,
and it is possible that France, owing her ascendancy threatened by the presence of so many foreign fleets, influenced the Sultan to grant Raisuli's terms in order to get the other governments to withdraw quickly.

Don Manuel Cervera, Proclaimed at Last Sunday's Fiasco in St. Louis County as Favorite Toreador of King of Spain, Slain by Shot After Bitter Quarrel.

SLAYER SAYS HE WAS ATTACKED WITH KNIFE

Members of Troupe Say Bulls
Were Procured in East St.
Louis, and That Management Planned to Have
"Fight" Prevented by Officers After Getting the Crowd's Money.

Don Manuel Cervera, a Spaniard who was introduced at Sunday's bullfight as the favorite matador of the King of Spain, was shot through the heart and instantly killed
by Carlitos Bass, known as the American matador, at the Moar Hotel, Ewing avenue and Morgan street, at 10:30 o'clock
this morning, as a result of the bullfighting fiasco in St. Louis County, near the Fair, Sunday afternoon.

The tragic denouement to the invasion of the World's Fair city by a troupe of Spanish bullfighters came after their adventure
in the United States had failed utterly and they had found themselves stranded in a foreign land.

After discussion arose in the troupe, and
two days of quarrelling came to a climax
this morning when Cervera and Bass clashed and Bass put a bullet through Cer-

But one shot was fired.
It was heard by Sergt. Gleason and Officers McKenna and Barry.

Rushing up to the third floor of the Mo-
ar Hotel, the police found Cervera dead
upon the floor of room 27, with Bass standing near, pistol in hand, and five other bullfighters in the hall, where they had fled while Bass and the Spaniard fought.

AMERICAN A MATADOR.

Cervera's body was taken to the Morgue
and Bass and the five bullfighters with him were taken to the Dayton Street Police Station and locked up.

Bass is a native of Ireland, and is 29 years of age. He is one of the best-known of the bullfighters of Old Mexico, and is known throughout the republic as the American matador. He is unique in the Spanish national game as the only American who ever became a famous matador.

The men locked up with him are Miguel Fernandez, Manuel Perea, Benito Lenz, Yarrazco and Mariano Legaria, all bullfighters, who came to St. Louis from the City of Mexico. They are all young men, ranging in age from 23 to 25 years.

Bass and the bullfighters who were with him told the same story of the shooting. They say that this morning they met in Bass' room at the Moar to discuss their troubles. They were in despair, having come to St. Louis with assurances that bull-fighting was to proceed without interference, and that they were to be employed for a period of six months.

Bass was the leader of the troupe. Cervera was almost a stranger to them, but became very friendly with him. They did not know anything of him, and did not even believe him to be a bull fighter. He had acted, together with his wife, as the intermediary in arranging for the troupe's coming from Mexico to St. Louis, and it was thought by Bass and his men that Cervera and his wife had received $250 for the troupe just before the bull fight was announced last Sunday, and that this money
was being withheld from the bull fighters
by Cervera.

Bass says Cervera was not a bullfighter
at all, but a dancer, and that he had danced at one of the St. Louis summer garden. Some time last winter Bass went up from Mexico to San Antonio, Tex., to spend some of his earnings in the building,
and he says he met Cervera there. Cervera told him that Richard Norris wanted
to put a genuine Spanish bullfight at St.
Louis during the Fair, and that he was the lookout for a troupe of bullfighters.

Bass says that Cervera's wife subsequently corresponded with him, assuring him that everything had been "fixed" for the bullfight at St. Louis and that the fight was to be a big feature of the Fair.
Bass says he was even given to understand that the Exposition company was co-operating with Norris.

FIASCO PLANNED

Bass says he suspected last Saturday that he was not as represented. He was informed that the bulls had not come,
and was asked by Norris to go over to East St. Louis and get some. Bass says
he did go there, but was unable to find anything that would fight in a bullring.
Norris then said he would go and get
the bulls, and he did.

Bass says that when he saw the steers procured for the fight by Norris, he presented, saying he could not afford to injure his reputation as a matador by going into a bull fight with a harmless steer.

Bass says that Norris assured him the authorities were going to stop the fight,
that he had been sent intended that Cer-
vera bull fight should be given, and that it
all had been arranged to give the crowd the fight they wanted.

MAN WITH LANTERN MYSTIFIES TOWN

Sisters in Charge of Parochial School at Centerville Are Annoyed by Frowler.

FLEES SHOTS, BUT RETURNS

Loneliness of Immediate Neighborhood of Church Property Gives Mystery Phase of Alarm.

CENTERVILLE, Mo., June 7.—Residents of Centerville Station, seven miles east of East St. Louis, are trying to learn the identity of a mysterious man who has recently been seen near St. Mary's parochial school, late at night, carrying a bull's-eye lantern.

Three times Sister Ambrosia, who is in charge of the school, has fired a revolver, frightening him away, but after each time he has returned. Each time he has come near the house occupied by Sister Ambrosia, but not near enough to allow his features to be distinguished.

Why he should visit the vicinity of the school is a puzzle to Centerville people as the identity. The school stands near the church of the Immaculate Conception. The house occupied by Sister Ambrosia and a younger sister, who are teachers, is inside the school. Near by is a convent, and beyond the convent are the tracks of the Illinois Central.

On the night of June 7, the mysterious man was seen by Sister Ambrosia, who fired her revolver. He fled, but returned a few minutes later. She fired again, and he fled again. This time he was seen by Sister Ambrosia and a younger sister, who are teachers, who fired their revolvers. He fled, but returned a few minutes later. She fired again, and he fled again.

GIRLS INSANE FROM FEAR OF BANDITS

Three New York Sisters Taken to Sanitarium in Vienna After Escaping From Escort.

PARIS, June 8.—Friends of Mrs. Bondy, of New York, have received from Vienna news that the young women are having medical treatment in European languages. After visiting the Holy Land, they journeyed to Egypt, saw the pyramids and went some distance up the Nile. A month ago they reached Constantinople. Last night they were taken to Vienna, where they were placed in a sanitarium.

They were evidently nervous, and told stories of an attempt made to kidnap them near the pyramids and of their having been pursued across Galilee by a band of robbers. They gave the impression to all who came in contact with them that their nerves had been considerably shaken by their adventures. They were taken to Vienna, where they were placed in a sanitarium.

On the arrival of the sisters in Vienna, they were taken to a sanitarium. They were placed in a room with other patients. They were given medical treatment. They were given food. They were given clothing. They were given everything they needed.

The real cause of the nervous breakdown is unknown. The sisters were taken to Vienna, where they were placed in a sanitarium. They were given medical treatment. They were given food. They were given clothing. They were given everything they needed.

CAB TRAGEDY IS STILL A MYSTERY

Police Center All Their Efforts on Tracing Ownership of the Revolver.

THINK THIS KEY TO CASE

Analysis of the Case, Showing Points Against and in Favor of the Imprisoned Woman.

NEW YORK, June 8.—After a second effort within 24 hours to secure from J. Edgar Smith, brother-in-law of Mrs. Nan Patterson, any information he may possess as to the ownership of the revolver which killed bookmaker Frank T. Young, a subpoena has been served directing Smith to appear before the grand jury today.

Detectives have been at work constantly since the tragedy, which occurred Saturday morning, in a cab, to trace the ownership of the revolver, whereby they expect to unravel the mystery surrounding the affair.

It was at first stated that the weapon had probably been shipped by a local firm to San Francisco. This was found, however, to be incorrect, and now it is definitely said that it was sold over the counter here. This occurred in 1929, when Young was in San Francisco and another person connected with the affair is understood to have been in New York.

Mrs. Patterson's brother-in-law, who was called to the district attorney's office yesterday and examined at length, was visited several hours later by detectives and, upon refusing to answer their questions, he was served with a subpoena.

A young pugilist from the West, who has just returned from Europe, is understood to have promised to meet the police and defend Mrs. Patterson, and has made up his mind to furnish bail for her should the court decide upon accepting bond.

Police Must Make Charge to Hold Her.

Justice Clarke, to whom Mrs. Patterson's lawyer has applied for a writ of habeas corpus, has the application under advisement. It is probable he will grant it unless the police put some charge against the woman immediately. So far, she is merely "held as a witness," though her bond has been set at $500.

John B. Patterson of Washington, father of the prisoner, visited her yesterday afternoon soon after she was taken back to the Tombs prison. They sat together in the recreation room and conversed for ten minutes. Their conversation was earnest, and several times the young woman wept. Her husband, who is a pugilist, is said to be very much affected by her plight, and as he rose to go he was heard to say:

"Well, in that case I shall stand by you." Mr. Patterson left the prison as his daughter was led back to her cell, and as he emerged on the street, he appeared greatly depressed. When asked if he had anything to say, Mr. Patterson replied: "The less said the better."

He was joined outside the prison by two young men, and they departed together.

Physical Facts of the Tragedy.

The physical facts that the police have to work on in the Young case are that the dead man, seated on the right side of the Patterson woman, received a bullet just above the heart, which pierced his way diagonally across his body until it struck a rib, following the course of the rib until it lodged in the spinal column.

The bullet, immediately after entering the body, severed an artery, and death was due to loss of blood. The bullet was found in the body, pointing downward, in Young's right-hand pocket.

Young was not accustomed to using his left hand, and to have fired the shot which killed him, it would have been necessary for him to carry his right hand around to such a point that ordinarily it would have been impossible for him to pull the trigger of the revolver and send a shot into his body that would have taken the course followed in this case.

Either the shot would have gone directly through his chest and out at the back, or it would have plowed straight downward. Experiments indicate that with the arm in the position necessary to fire such a shot the finger has not sufficient strength to hold a revolver so that the bullet would follow the line of the shot which killed Young.

Difficulty of Using Left Hand. He could not have used his left hand, it is believed, because he was sitting so close to the woman that freedom of movement was impossible. It is indisputable that the shot was not fired from his pocket, for otherwise the bullet would have taken an altogether different course, and there would be holes in the coat showing where the bullet passed through, and powder burns.

He was not known ever to have carried a revolver; there was no apparent reason for his carrying one, and the arrangement he had made to sail and the purchase of a straw hat a few minutes before the shot was fired, all argue against any determination to end his life.

There is a possibility that, if a man drew a revolver with the announcement that he was about to part with her, perhaps for ever, he had supplied her with large sums of money, and the thought of the separation might have aroused a jealous anger that culminated in a murderous passion.

Points in Favor of Suspected Woman. The Patterson woman did not seek Young on Saturday morning. He sought her. Until she received the telephone message asking the appointment with her, she might reasonably have imagined that she never was to see him again. She knew he was to sail at 9:30 that morning.

If she had intended to kill him she would have sought a meeting and not have waited the chance of him seeking another meeting with her. She was asleep when his message reached her. But for the fatal call she might have slept until Young was on the ocean.

Unless a woman has determined to commit murder, she ordinarily does not carry a revolver. The Patterson woman dressed hurriedly on Saturday morning and hastened to meet Young. No powder marks or smell of powder were found on her hands after the shooting.

It is woman's nature to reel at the sight of a revolver, and it is conceivable that she may have seized the revolver in her horror and thrust it in Young's pocket out of sight when she beheld the results of its work.

Or, Young might, having fired the shot, have placed the revolver in his pocket himself. He did not do so instantly. He fled to death.

In Denver not long ago a man, after believing he had killed a woman, turned the revolver on himself and pulled the trigger, and then escaped by a back door, climbed a fence and entered his own room. Two nights up, where he lay, a doctor and an autopsy showed that the bullet had entered his heart.

In the far West a gambler was shot through the heart while he held a pack of cards in his hand. He was the only one who was shot and he was the only one who was shot.

And he was the only one who was shot and he was the only one who was shot.

And he was the only one who was shot and he was the only one who was shot.

And he was the only one who was shot and he was the only one who was shot.

SHOUT TO KILL IN WEBSTER GROVES

Presence of Suspected Thieves Brings Proclamation From Mayor Hart to Take Drastic Steps.

Edward S. Hart, mayor of Webster Groves, has issued a proclamation, addressed to the citizens and vigilance committee just organized of his town, in which he advises that the law must be observed and crime must stop, even if it is necessary to shoot to kill. He says: "First be sure you are right and then shoot to kill."

Many criminals have been attracted to Webster Groves since the opening of the fair. One hundred and fifty new members were added to the vigilance committee Tuesday, and the mayor's proclamation was issued. The mayor advises that no tramps be allowed in the town, that none be fed and none should under any circumstances be allowed in the houses of the citizens. He also advises that nothing be purchased of any peddler who cannot show a city license.

He ends his statement: "Be sure you are right and then shoot to kill. All persons are warned to keep off the streets between the hours of midnight and daybreak or out at these late hours. You should answer promptly if a demand is made as to who you are and why you are out. This city must and shall be rid of all crime and criminals. Law and order must prevail."

"DANGER AHEAD." The Engineer's Care.

THERE is danger ahead for some of us who do not look after the proper handling of the human body. Exactly as the power of the steam engine depends upon the amount of energy it can produce from its fuel, so the power of the man depends upon the amount of energy he can produce from his food. Success and power in war or in peace, in business or in any other pursuit, depends upon good digestion and pure blood.

An ignorant man cannot run an engine, neither can a man over-work his brain without meeting some disaster unless he observes certain laws of health. If the engine is properly oiled and cared for it will last a great many years, and in the same way if the human mechanism is properly looked after it will last the allotted three score and ten years. As civilization progresses, the strain on the brain and nerves increases, but no dose of work burns up blood as fast as brain work. Hard work continued to shop or office, without the invigorating air and sunshine becomes "the pace that kills," the muscles and flesh become flabby and the blood watery. The human system must be a laboratory for the constant manufacture of rich, red blood. Success and courage depend upon the blood and the blood depends upon the stomach, for the stomach, when healthy, takes up from the food we eat the elements required for the blood. If the stomach cannot assimilate the food taken up, then the blood and the nerves starve for the proper nourishment they require. This human machine soon breaks down like the engine without coal for its boiler, because the heart, liver and lungs do not receive the pure blood necessary to keep them strong and active.

Remember this, that our bodies will not stand the strain of over-work without good, pure blood any more than the engine can run smoothly without oil. After many years of study in the active practice of medicine, Dr. R. V. Pierce found that when the stomach was out of order, the blood impure and there were symptoms of general break-down, a tonic made of the alternative extracts of certain herbs and roots was the best corrective. This he called: Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. For over a third of a century this tonic alternative has been more largely sold than any other blood medicine or nerve tonic. Being made without alcohol, this "Medical Discovery" does not shrink up the red blood corpuscles, but on the other hand it increases their number, and they become round and healthy. It helps the stomach to assimilate or take up the proper elements from the food, thereby helping digestion and curing dyspepsia, heartburns, and many uncomfortable

We guarantee that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery does not contain alcohol, opium, or any harmful drug. It is a pure compound of medicinal plants scientifically combined. Per-

CLUB MAN DIES IN CHEAP HOTEL

Tinge of Mystery Surrounds Death of Western Attorney After Fit of Melancholy.

NEW YORK, June 8.—It has just been learned that "W. Parker of San Francisco," who was found dead in a Broadway hotel Sunday morning, was Walter Basil Packer, a graduate of Harvard University, and said to be a member of the Bohemian and Pacific clubs of San Francisco, two of the most exclusive organizations on the coast.

Packer was prominent in legal circles before coming to New York a little more than a year ago. What business brought him east is not known, but until within a few days, his acquaintances say, he appeared to be well supplied with funds. A coroner's physician who examined the body found that death was caused by acute gastritis, induced by some agency with which he was unfamiliar. The stomach is being analyzed.

Orders had been given a burial company to cremate the body, when a woman, said to be Mrs. Packer, appeared and directed that it should be made ready for regular burial.

PARKER IS THE FAVORITE WITH KENTUCKIANS

Factional Row Obscures National Issues With Convention Hosts and Question of Instructions Will Be Unsettled to the Last Moment.

BECKHAM OR BLACKBURN, WHOEVER WINS, WILL SAY

Both Favor New York Justice, but Blackburn Opposes Instructions; Beckham Says Nothing While Waiting to See How Districts Act.

BY SAMUEL G. BLYTHE, Staff Correspondent of the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.
LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 8.—The probabilities are that Kentucky will send a Park or delegation to St. Louis. It has not been decided and will not be until today whether the delegation shall be instructed. That will rest with the judgment of the faction that will control the convention.

Sentiment for and against instructions is about equally divided. National Committee-man Urey Woodson of Owensboro is working for instructions and thinks he will be successful. Some of the factional leaders are opposed to instructions because they think it is poor politics and not because they are opposed to Parker. There is no doubt that the preponderance of sentiment is for Parker and little doubt that the delegation will vote for Parker on the first ballot at St. Louis. The delegation will vote as a unit.

The question will be settled after the district conventions are held this morning. The matter has been subordinated to the factional fight, led on one side by Gov. Beckham, his state officers and Representative Ollie Jones, and on the other by Senators Blackburn and McCreary and Representative Kehoe.

The delegates who crowd the lobbies of the hotels talk of local affairs exclusively. The fight is bitter between the factions. Control of the state central committee and the state executive committee hinges on the outcome.

Gov. Beckham and his friends are now in control. Senator Blackburn and his friends seek control because Blackburn knows that if Beckham is successful the governor will be a candidate for Blackburn's seat in the Senate. Blackburn is fighting for his political life.

Back of the present crisis there is a long story of machine politics. Recently the lines were drawn and one faction or the other will be beaten decisively today. Each side says there will be no compromise, and each side apparently means it.

Blackburn's Every Breath Is Defiance.

Senator Blackburn, the silver-tongued, natty in a gray suit, and whose Fedora hat tipped rakishly over his left ear, strode through the lobby at Seelbach's smoking den at every stride. "I will never give up this fight," he said (short). "I would spit in the face of any man who would intimate or suggest to me to quit. (Short). It will be a fight on every proposition that comes before the convention. (Short). I have never fought, and by the way, I will not fight now. (Short). We will win, and all the world may know now and forever that in this campaign of mine I will not be defeated. (Short, short, short)."

State Auditor Samuel H. Jager, Gov. Beckham's manager, is equally positive, but not so declaratory.

The Blackburn faction has put up Representative Kehoe for state chairman. The Beckham candidate is Lewis McQuinn. The fight will come on the temporary organization. Gov. Beckham will himself be a candidate for temporary chairman. The Blackburn faction will oppose with Ken Johnson, who is from Beckham's county.

The advance notices say there will be the greatest speechfest at the convention ever known in this home of orators. The gigantic Ollie Jones will put Gov. Beckham in nomination for temporary chairman. Then Senator Blackburn will nominate Johnson. Each of these statements is a spellbinder of unlimited vocabulary and long practice.

It is quite likely that Gov. Beckham will make a speech. Then will follow Senator McCreary, half-a-dozen representatives and many other orators whose fame has not yet burst the confines of the state.

The chances are that Beckham will be elected. His managers claim most votes of the delegation. Indeed, the Beckham program appears to be to wheedle the opposition over by the silver oratory of which he carries so large a stock.

Blackburn Opposes Instructions, Not Parker.

When the first contest is over the faction in power will carry out its plans. It is, therefore, apparent that the question of instructing the delegation for Parker rests with either Blackburn or Beckham.

Blackburn is frank to say that he does not favor instructions. He thinks it foolish to tie the hands of the delegation, but he is specific in his statement that his position does not mean that he opposes Judge Parker for he favors Parker. Beckham will not say what his course will wait until after the district conventions to declare himself. The district conventions, in addition to selecting delegates to St. Louis, electors and members for the various convention committees will choose a member each for the state central committee, and one each for the state executive committee.

The men to go as delegates at large have not yet been determined upon. Gov. Beckham will be one, if he wants, and Ollie Jones another. It may be that so many delegates will be sent that Senator Blackburn and McCreary will be shut out if they lose, but the general opinion today is that they will go. Judge Wm. S. Pryor of Henry County and Representative Hearst, both have to show for his long campaign in the state, which was directed by one of his personal lieutenants, and by Chas. A. Walsh, secretary of the Democratic committee, will be a few delegates scattered here and there through the convention.

Hearst made one of his hardest fights in Kentucky. He spent money liberally and tried to get an organization in every congressional district. The result was a fiasco, more pronounced than those in Ohio, Wisconsin and Indiana. He got nowhere. When it came to the point which he was snubbed under in every precinct a few delegates. Today, Walsh, who is still here, scenting an opportunity, announced that all that he has been working for Hearst is an unrestricted delegation, no matter what the delegates favor.

LYNCHING MAY END MISSOURI MAN HUNT

Outcome Depends on Whether the Sheriff's Posse Beats Citizens in the Catch.

BLOODHOUNDS USED IN CHASE

Highway Robbery Followed by an Attempted Assassination and It Is Believed They Are Connected.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
BOLIVAR, Mo., June 7.—A pack of bloodhounds and a posse of citizens, headed by Sheriff Wilson Crane and his deputy, John Franklin, are on a man hunt through the mountainous regions in Polk County, lying between the Sac river and Dade County. They are searching for an unidentified man who attempted to assassinate F. M. Shelton, a prominent farmer, at his door at daylight yesterday morning.

The attempted murder of Shelton is the second that has taken place in Polk County within a week.

The posse is composed of young farmers who have been sworn in by the sheriff in order to make them officers of the law to prevent a lynching should the fugitive be caught. Another band of young men is searching the creek bottoms in another direction with a pack of bloodhounds. They have declared their intention of lynching the man if they find him.

When the alarm of the attack on Shelton was spread throughout the country yesterday morning a telegram was sent to Springfield for a pack of bloodhounds, which was started across country at once and arrived at Shelton's place about noon. The sheriff and his posse had started in pursuit an hour before.

The shooting of Shelton, it is believed, grew out of a highway robbery and attempted murder that took place at daylight last Tuesday in the road that runs past Shelton's farm.

The Assault on

Two Peddlers.

Late last Tuesday afternoon two peddlers who said they were Arabians passed through Polk County selling rugs, clocks and notions to the farmers' wives. They said they were in the employ of a firm at Kirksville, Mo. They had sold a large quantity of merchandise and had a considerable amount of money in their possession.

About 5 o'clock in the evening they were passing the west end of Shelton's place when they were confronted by two young men, who leveled shotguns at their heads and ordered them to throw up their hands. The Arabians whipped their horses and attempted to escape by the bridge, but one of the men caught the horses by the bridles and forced the animals back upon their haunches. The man with the shotgun, who was apparently very much excited, discharged the gun. A heavy load of buckshot lodged in the neck of one of the Arabians, who fell back into the wagon. The men with the shotgun then jumped upon him in the road and leaped upon the wagon. He drew a pistol and beat the other Arabian over the head with it, and while his accomplice held the plunging team, he searched the pockets of his wounded victim and took $100.

When he jumped from the wagon the horses were reined and they dashed down the road in the direction of Walnut Grove, where they arrived exhausted, with one of the Arabians lying in the bottom of the wagon almost dead and the other still flailing by the blows of his headhunter. The man with the shotgun recovered speedily to tell a coherent story of what had happened and gave a description of the highwaymen. From the description given the authorities, who worked for F. M. Shelton.

How the Assassin

Planned Man's Death.

Creed and Hickman were then brought to Bolivar and placed in the Polk County jail, from which they were later released on bail of $1000 each.

The Arabian who was shot lies on his back at the point of death at Walnut Creek and his recovery is doubtful. Just before daylight yesterday morning Shelton was awakened by shouts of "Hello!" in the road in front of his house. He paid no attention to the calls and went to sleep again. A few minutes later he was again aroused by some one bounding on the door of his house. When he opened the door he could just discern the figure of a man who commanded him to throw up his hands and who pointed a gun at his head. Shelton grabbed the end of the gun barrel and thrust it out of line with his head just as the weapon was discharged. The lead of the shot blew off his right hand and passed the length of his arm, shattering it, and he fell with a groan inside his door. His assailant fled without being recognized by Shelton, who was placed in a wagon and hurried to a physician in Morrisville, four miles distant.

News of the attempted murder soon spread and farmers gathered from all directions. Several theories were advanced to account for the attempt upon the life of Shelton, against whom there was no known enmity that would excite such extreme revenge. He is known as a quiet citizen who has always attended closely to his own business and who apparently had no enemies. It is believed that it is a development of the robbery and that friends of somebody connected with it took this means of getting even with him for the interest he took in the case.

FORGED SLANDER ON HIS WIFE

Inmate of Soldiers' Home Convicted of Attempt to Cheat Woman of Pension.

Samuel C. Swan, an inmate of the Soldiers' Home at Dade, Mo., was found guilty by a jury in the United States District Court Wednesday morning of forging the name of Alvin C. Burkey to an affidavit attacking the character of Swan's wife, from whom he is separated. It appears Swan is drawing a pension of $12 a month from the government, and under the law, when husband and wife become separated, the wife is entitled to one-half of the pension, providing she is "of good moral character."

Judge Adams deferred sentence.

....Carroll D. Wright, Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor, Washington, D. C., and world-famous statistician, in a bulletin issued by his department in March, 1904, gives the following regarding the INCREASE in cost of FUEL the past thirteen years:

- 27.1% INCREASE in cost of hard stove coal since 1890.
- 43.9% INCREASE in cost of soft coal since 1890.
- 14.6% DECREASE in cost of parlor matches since 1890.

A Timely Topic

Our stock of Refrigerators for this season is now in, and housekeepers are invited to examine them. NOW is the time to make your arrangements for a new ice box. Remember the low price plan is never made to induce a purchaser to buy a McCRAY REFRIGERATOR. We know our ice boxes will cost you less in the end than any other make. Why? Because what you "save" in the purchase of the ordinary size-lined or "enameled" (painted) box is wasted many times over in paying for more ice than would be required in a McCRAY. We know our box gives "better results with less ice"—it is the verdict in every family now using a McCRAY. Cold, dry air—no odors—no mold. PERFECT CIRCULATION AND INSULATION. # JAP SPY FLEET HAS HARD FIGHT AT PORT ARTHUR

One Gunboat Is Hit Eight Times During Terrific Cannonade From the Fortress, Though Only One of Her Crew Is Killed.

ALEXIEFF'S PROCLAMATION STIRS CHINESE TO ANGER

Will Hold Towns Along Railroad Responsible for Its Protection and Put Residents to Sword If They Fail in Their Duty.

TOKYO, June 8.—3.30 a. m.—Four Japanese gunboats which made a close reconnaissance at Port Arthur harbor on midnight of June 6, for the purpose of examining the entrance, were exposed to a severe cannonade.

Gunboat No. 6 was hit eight times and suffered some damage. One of her sailors was killed and two others were wounded.

PEKING, June 8.—Viceroy Alexieff recently issued a proclamation stating that he had instructed the troops not to engage the Japanese forces, but to retire inland Manchuria being thereby kept free of actual warfare.

The Chinese inhabitants are, therefore, instructed to continue their usual avocations.

Those caught helping the Japanese or aiding in the preservation of the railways, the responsibility resting upon the villages located within 20 miles from the point where there had been any destruction of this class of property.

For the first offense, the people of such villages will be fined, for the second offense, the villages will be destroyed and the villagers will be put to the sword, not a soul being spared.

Not only will the common people be held responsible in this matter, but also the Manchus and local officers. The proclamation also charges the inhabitants to make a strict search for all suspicious characters.

UNIDENTIFIED WOMAN FOUND DEAD

WHO ARE FRIENDS OF INJURED WOMAN? BULLFIGHTER SLAIN BY AMERICAN "PAL"

Unconscious and Unidentified, She Is Picked Up on Iron Mountain Track.

As Policeman Westervelt was patrolling his beat along the Iron Mountain track, near the foot of Wyandotte street, early this morning, he found a woman lying between the tracks and the bluff.

Examination showed that she was not dead, but was unconscious. He sent her to the City Hospital, where she is still unconscious. She has not been identified.

She has a severe scalp wound and probably a fractured skull, and her shoulder is broken.

The woman may have fallen over the bluff or may have been struck by a train. There is no way of knowing how long she had been lying beside the track, but it is supposed that she had been there since the early part of the evening.

The woman is seemingly over 70 years of age. She is 5 feet 4 inches in height and weighs 175 pounds. Her hair is gray. She wore a blue calico dress with small white figures, a check gingham apron and low shoes. She had on one of her fingers a gold ring, set with a blue stone.

She wore no hat.

M. B. Holly, Unarmed, Put Two Highwaymen to Rout Early Wednesday Morning When They Entered the Star Pharmacy to Rob Him.

FOUGHT WHILE LOOKING INTO REVOLVER'S MOUTH

Plucky Young Man Told the Robbers He Would Do Some Shooting Himself—They Fled Without Firing a Shot and Escaped.

M. B. Holly, night clerk at the Star Pharmacy, Twelfth and Olive streets, reported to the police at 4:30 o'clock Wednesday morning that five minutes before he had put to flight two highwaymen who had attempted to rob him.

He said the would-be robbers ran north on Twelfth street to Locust, and turned west. The police gave chase, but did not find a trace of them.

Holly says the two men first entered the store at 3 o'clock and bought a glass of soda water each. They tendered a $5 bill in payment, evidently trying to get a chance to estimate the amount of money in the cash register as he made change.

One of the men was heavy set, weighing about 175 pounds and standing about 5 feet 10 inches. He wore a dark coat, light trousers and a light sash hat. The other was about 150 pounds, and wore dark clothes. Neither had a gun, but each had a knife.

At 4:30 o'clock, according to Holly, the smaller of the men, returned to the store and did not at first appear to be armed. After making the purchase he started out, but at the door was met by the larger man, who pointed a revolver at him and advanced on the clerk, who was standing near the cash register.

The big fellow thrust a revolver in my face, and I thought he would shoot. I told him there would be two at the shooting, and I had a revolver in my coat pocket and wanted a chance to try it.

"The fellow talked a lot and kept threatening. Then the little fellow squirmed up to me and began to try to take my revolver and the money in my pocket. I swung hard on his jaw and he staggered out of the door.

"I started after him, but the big fellow started after me, still threatening to kill me. He had the opportunity, but evidently did not have the nerve, for his companion was clear of the door both north and south of me.

"They turned west on Locust street and I had $37 and a gold watch in my pocket. I thought of it, but rather than to give up without a fight, and to lose the watch, I followed them.

Holly says this is his third experience with would-be robbers. His previous acquaintances with them were in Louisville, Ky., and in Logansport, a small town in southern Louisiana. He has been in St. Louis since September. His residence is 2802 Lucas avenue.

ning out of the hotel the other men ran south, through the hall, and I suppose left the building.

Bass was standing quietly, awaiting arrest, when the police entered. He was alone with the man he had killed, the others having run out. The police say he made no effort to resist, but went with them without a word, handing over his revolver and impressing them with his perfect composure.

He simply said he had killed Cervera in self-defense. Cervera's wife was not with him when the shooting occurred. She was supposed to be out at the Fair last night.

Since the destruction of the amphitheater by the mob, Cervera and his wife had been staying at the Excelsior, just north of the ruins of the pavilion.

THEORY OF JEALOUSY.

The woman is a blonde of striking appearance. She was at the bullfight Sunday afternoon, when the police entered. He was alone with the man he had killed, the others having run out. The police say he made no effort to resist, but went with them without a word, handing over his revolver and impressing them with his perfect composure.

NO CHAMPAGNE WAS WASTED ON VULCAN

Miss Jackson Said It Would Be Apollinaris and Apollinaris It Was.

Vulcan, the iron man from Alabama, was not christened with champagne Tuesday afternoon. The spectators saw what they supposed was a quart of champagne spilled over the feet of the giant, but it was apollinaris water.

No champagne was used because Miss Miriam Jackson, who did the christening, does not believe in champagne for christening purposes nor for drinking purposes.

When Miss Jackson, who is the only daughter of P. M. Jackson, president of the Birmingham Commercial Club, was selected to christen big Vulcan, it was not known that her temperance convictions were so strong.

J. A. McKnight of Birmingham, who superintended the construction of Vulcan, sent out invitations which stated that the christening would be done in true Southern style. That means champagne.

But when Miss Jackson, typical Southern girl, was told that the christening would be in true Southern style, she said: "I'll not use champagne."

It was no use to argue that champagne was apollinaris water. She had her way and apollinaris was substituted. After the speeches, when Miss Jackson stepped forward it was noticed that the bottle was quite large and that it was wrapped in paper.

The wrapping was not removed, and when Miss Jackson shattered the bottle, by striking the ankle of the giant, and said: "I christen thee Vulcan, in the name of the people of the South," everybody supposed the bottle was champagne.

The quantity was so great that President Francis and Director of Exhibits Skiff had to step back to avoid being splashed. It was a shame to waste so much champagne on the feet of an iron man.

When the statue was christened, it was found that there was no liquor in the punch. It was suggested that, after spilling a quart of champagne on Vulcan's toes, there was some left for the crowd.

WEDDING INTERESTS EASTERN SOCIETY

Many Guests From a Distance Will Attend Blackwell-Aldrich Marriage Ceremony.

ROCKEFELLER IS BEST MAN

One Thousand Invitations Issued to Event at First Presbyterian Church.

One of the most notable of wedding days will be that of Miss M. Jackson, who is the only daughter of P. M. Jackson, president of the Birmingham Commercial Club, when she is married to Mr. Aldrich.

The bride-elect is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Blackwell of 408 McPherson avenue, St. Louis, and the bridegroom is the second son of Senator Nelson Aldrich of Rhode Island.

Rev. W. J. McKittick, pastor of the church, will officiate. The bridesmaids will be Miss Elsie Aldrich and Miss Isabel Brown of Providence, R. I.; Miss Agnes Blackwell and Miss Nancy Jane Blackwell, sisters of the bride. The ushers will be John D. Rockefeller, Jr., of New York, Louis Hays, Harry Blackwell, Clarence Potter and Eugene Pettus.

One thousand invitations have been issued and St. Louis society will be reinforced by guests from all over the country.

Immediately after the reception Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich will leave St. Louis for Senator Aldrich's summer home at Warwick, R. I. Miss Blackwell first met Mr. Aldrich while a guest at the home of Mrs. Isabel Brown, daughter of former Gov. D. Russell Brown of Rhode Island. The two young ladies had attended boarding school together.

Before coming to St. Louis last year Mr. Aldrich gave a bachelor dinner at the Agawam Hunt Club, Providence. Since then he has been a frequent guest at the Blackwell home.

John D. Rockefeller, who will act as best man, arrived from New York Monday and is stopping at the Jefferson Hotel. He is Mr. Aldrich's brother-in-law having married the eldest daughter of Senator Aldrich.

The groom's father and mother, Senator and Mrs. Aldrich, are in St. Louis to attend the ceremony.

WIDOW WAS NOT ATTACKED.

After the body of Cervera was removed from the room there was nothing to indicate that the place had been the scene of a tragedy. The furniture was not disturbed. There were several coats hanging on chairs and hooks. A collar and tie were on a shelf. There was a double bed, but only one pillow on it. A table, made up, but was indented where men had been sitting on it. There was a telephone on the wall. There was a box filled with bull-fighters' costumes. There were no letters and no photographs. There was no food on the floor where Cervera was shot.

SAYS HE WAS ATTACKED.

When Bass was locked up at the police station he threw his coat off and paced nervously back and forth in his cell. At first he declined to make a statement, but changed his mind and said:

"Cervera came to my room and accused me of interfering with his business. He was elaborately gowned, and shone quite brilliantly. He told me he was a lawyer, and that he had obtained transportation for them, and that all who wanted to go could do so. He told me he was a lawyer, and that he had obtained transportation for them, and that all who wanted to go could do so. He told me he was a lawyer, and that he had obtained transportation for them, and that all who wanted to go could do so."

SAID CERVERA FIRED.

Several members of the company of bull-fighters had been in a rooming house at 2705 Morgan street. Bass left the room on May 27. When he applied at the hotel he found the rooming house. He told the proprietor that there had been some trouble about the rooming house. He told the proprietor that there had been some trouble about the rooming house. ### RECORD-BREAKING CROWD POURS INTO THE GROUNDS.

Liberty Bell, according to Fair officials, will prove to be the greatest one, in point of attendance, since opening day. At noon Norris B. Gregg, director of admissions, who had been in personal charge of the Liberty Bell since morning, estimated that 50,000 children and 7000 adults, in addition to the ordinary crowds, had passed through the seven gates of that entrance. He said about 25,000 children had gone through the other gates open to them. The estimate of the total admissions for the day was at that time between 110,000 and 120,000.

Mr. Gregg estimated that 30 children passed through each of the seven gates each minute between 8 o'clock and noon. There was one adult for about every seven of the children.

The children were in their glory and they came from everywhere. Some of them were very small children, and many were very large ones. No tickets and no credentials were necessary; the word of the child as to the school attended was all that was asked. Therefore when strapping fellows, appearing in the neighborhood of 30 years, approached and innocently declared they were in the High School, they went in with the rest.

The children swarmed into and through the exhibit palaces. They did not waste their time in foolishness, but hurried to the places where they could see things. Many of the parochial schools did their sightseeing in marching line, led by priests or teachers.

Nearly all of the children carried their own lunches, and at noon the Fair was a great lunching ground, with masses of children sitting on lawns and stone benches eating the sandwiches and sweets which they had brought with them.

A totally unexpected feature of the day was the fact that during the morning not a lost child was reported. The police had prepared for at least 200 of those reports before noon.

Burned by Gasoline.

George Dowling, aged 21, of 2918 Ohio avenue, was painfully burned on one wrist in attempting to extinguish flames by the explosion of a gasoline tank on an automobile belonging to Robert F. ## EXPOSITION ADVERTISING.

Accepting the statements of President Francis and Secretary Stevens that the work of publicity and promotion in connection with the Exposition has not been neglected, yet many will differ from them in their opinion that the Exposition is benefited by public ignorance of its greatness, variety and beauty, and that more is gained by astonishing the people who come to see it without realizing how great it is than by apprising all the people who may be induced to come, of its greatness.

President Francis, while justifying the publicity work that has been done, finds cause for gratification in the fact that the outside public do not realize the greatness of the World's Fair. In his telegram to Secretary of the Treasury Shaw he says rather proudly that others have complained that the public does not know what the Exposition is and that those who come and see it are surprised to find it much better than they expected.

Secretary Stevens expresses the same view. He gives ground for the inference that the Exposition management does not depend much upon press advertising, by vigorously supporting the policy of underadvertising. "In the course of the next few weeks," he says, "the Exposition at St. Louis will realize how much better it is to be underadvertised than overadvertised. Those who come from a distance invariably express astonishment and go away to spread the information that this World's Fair is beyond all anticipation, and far beyond what has been printed about it."

This theory of successful advertising will astonish the public, and especially successful business men, who advertise effectively even more than the World's Fair astonishes the visitor who accidentally stumbles upon such a good thing without any idea of how good it is. Would it not be better to induce a million people to come to see the World's Fair by letting them know how good it is than to astonish a thousand who come to see it without realizing its greatness?

Of what advantage is it to keep the truth about the greatness of the Exposition out of print and to wait for the information of its greatness to be spread abroad by chance visitors? Underadvertising and overadvertising are relative terms. To overadvertise is to advertise falsely, to misrepresent the merits of the article to be disposed of. Underadvertising is another form of false advertising, as it depreciates the article in the public mind, or keeps the public in ignorance of its merits. There are many conspicuous examples of success through overadvertising, but not one instance of success through underadvertising.

But why, either way? Why not let every one that can be reached know all about the greatness of the Exposition? If you have a good thing why conceal its goodness? Why not let everybody know you have it, and how good it is? It is impossible to overadvertise an Exposition of the greatness and beauty of this one, which is sure to satisfy and delight all who see it. It is impossible to let its attractiveness be too widely known. The quicker the public is informed of its greatness and the more widely spread the information the better. The astonishment of the few is gratifying, but what is wanted is the attendance of the many from the first day to the last.

Of course, we are not discussing the question of publicity from the standpoint of paid advertising, which, in so large a field as that of our international Exposition, must be greatly limited. The question suggested by the Exposition officials concerns the value of the publication of full information about the Exposition assuming that the opportunity is freely offered, assuming that outside newspapers would be proportionately, at least, as liberal as the St. Louis newspapers, which have prepared and published pages of Exposition pictures and stories.

The supreme court of Colorado places the governor above even itself. This gubernatorial office in Colorado is a sublime thing.

SCREAMING BY NOTE.

Mrs. Amelia Weed Holbrook declares that "no mother should be weak enough to allow her baby to scream off key. She should carry a tuning fork, and when the child is about to begin a prolonged howl give him the proper notes."

It is dollars to dimes that Mrs. Holbrook is not herself a mother. "No mother ever conceived mother wisdom so simple, practical and luminous as this."

Mrs. Holbrook's scheme, as outlined in Tuesday's Post-Dispatch, is highly scientific. It seems to work with mosquitoes and children. So why not with babies?

Let every tired mother get a tuning fork and teach the little one how to cry by note. There has been discord enough in the family. The infant's cry should hereafter manifest in harmony.

Is free-trade fanaticism so much worse than high-tariff bour-

POLITICAL ATAVISM.

By the decapitation of 26 state employees because they did not support him ardently enough in his canvass for renomination, and in the convention, Gov. Yates of Illinois announces his last of fitness for public office.

Conditions in Illinois are calculated to fill the good civil service reformer with alarm.

If all sales are true President Roosevelt took a hand in the late shindies and compelled the federal employees to "whoop it up" for London. He did not bring in his man, but Yates was defeated, which probably was the next most pleasing thing to the ex-civil service reformer in the White House.

The contest in Illinois recalls the halcyon days before the young civil service commissioner, Theodore Roosevelt, dealt the spoils system good, stout blows and contributed so much to initiate the improvements that have since been accomplished in the federal service.

The trained hands of the state service are expected to do their duty, and if they don't know what the duty is they are instructed by the governor.

It is a queer case of political atavism, an instance of reversion to type which may well discourage those breeders of corrupt ideas, the civil service reformers.

Can't Lose Her.

This week I wrote some verses on the practice
Of utilizing woman as an "ad."
To many things on market to attract us,
And following is the pretty cut I had.

But, so it chanced, the printer didn't know
It. And so it was "omitted"; that was sad,
But here's more verses, for I'm bound to show it.
And use this fetching fairy for an add.

Trixie Is Troubled.

ST. LOUIS, June 7, 1906.
Editor of "Just a Minute"—Dear Sir: I am a beautiful young woman of 20 years,
and am deeply in love with a handsome
and perfectly well-to-do man.
I think he loves me as deep as I do him,
but the other night when I boned him
about the matter he sort of shied and looked embarrassed.
Now, do you think I ought to wait for him to say something, or would it be proper
form for me to go ahead and sort of force
him to declare his intentions?
I am playing another swell friend of mine as a long shot, but Jimmie is the odds-on favorite with me, the best in the stable, by all odds, but I don't know just how to handle him. Shall I give him the reins, or had I better let him have the whip coming down the homestretch? Anxiously,

TRIXIE DELMAR.

That made our country free,
Is all and more, we're glad to say,
That it's cracked up to be.

Even in his Liberty Bell poem one author
couldn't get away from "suffring people,"
and he rung in "suffring" eleven times, but the climax came when he wrote it "suffring songs."

An advertiser wants to know if we want

A St. Louis dance hall proprietor has been fined $50 for violating the law. Mercy!
How can Sin ever stand a wallop like that?

At this rate the Jefferson guard who can

The city budget of New York is greater

What's the Color of Your Soul Mate

By Nixola Greeley-Smith, Granddaughter of Horace Greeley.

(Written for The Post-Dispatch.)

Pause, happy lovers hovering helplessly on the verge of matrimony!
You, Edwin,
cease gazing fondly
into the eyes of Angelina. Their splendor
does not matter
whether it be black or gray or brown or blue. It is the color of her soul that counts.

For according to the latest cut introduced
by Mrs. Margaret Gladstone Stewart,
a great-granddaughter of England's grand old man, every human soul has a distinct color of its own.

"For instance: A person in perfect health and full of hope and ambition will radiate pink."
"The maternal instinct shows itself in lavender color."

"The gray and blue radiation is more negative both as regards physical and mental qualities."
And so on through the whole psychic ran-bow.

So, if your soul has a pink aura, you must be careful to select a soul mate with an aura of contrasting shade. If its tastes are quiet the pink soul will take a white or gray or café-au-lait mate; if gaudy it will yearn for a vivid green. If inclined to French combination of color it will select a dull crimson or a startling scarlet for its better half. The only trouble about the whole scheme is that the course of instruction through which one has to pass before being able to discover the color of one's own or one's neighbor's soul is discourag-ingly difficult.

One must, according to the high priest-

ess, "endeavor to improve his own mental atmosphere, to eliminate thoughts and feelings of selfishness, envy and hatred.
Outward and inward calmness must be cultivated before the student can hope to discern the aura."

"Exercises in rhythmic breathing are helpful, as also are living in the open air and communion with nature."

"The aura student should be careful to avoid much meat eating and all forms of coarse food."

Let all engaged couples therefore stop
bbling and cooing in the absurd fashion
dear to commonplace mortals. For until they have by fasting and rhythmic breathing discovered that their souls do, indeed,
match, they must regard these manifestations of mutual esteem as shockingly premature. Fancy what a jolt to the eternal harmonies must be given when the owner
of a red soul, all ignorant of its hue, embraces the unconscious owner of a purple
one.

And what advantage to weary lawyers
and judges if the plaintiff and defendant
in divorce suits could be made to demonstrate the incompatibility claimed by projecting their psychic auras through the courtroom and allowing judge and jury to decide hands down whether there be really reasons for discord in their domestic relations.

It would, of course, be essential to have only such judicial Daniels as are not color
blind, and it would have to be demonstrated to the satisfaction of opposing lawyers that the impregnated jury did not suffer from a similar defect.

Considering this and other innumerable advantages which will suggest themselves
to every one, had we not all better stop eating meat and learn to rhythmically find
the colors of our souls?

THE INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM What These Legislative Reforms Might Accomplish for Missouri.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

"The people of Missouri will be called upon to vote at the next general election in November on the initiative and referendum amendment incorporating direct legislation by the initiative and referendum into our constitution of Missouri."

I have often been asked by intelligent and even well educated men to explain by illustration the exact meaning of these words.

Direct legislation means law-making directly by the people. It is composed of two parts, the initiative and the referendum.

If the initiative were a part of our constitution, then 10 per cent of the qualified voters of the state, which in Missouri would amount to about 70,000 voters, could sign
a petition stating that they wanted a certain law enacted. Then under the provisions of the initiative, if the legislature failed or refused to pass that law, it would have to be submitted to the vote of the whole people of the state, and at the next general election it would be printed on all
the ballots, and every voter of the state,
irrespective of party, could vote yes or no
on that question, and if it was approved by a majority it would become a law directly by that action of the people and without the consent of the legislature or the governor and the law would then read: Be it enacted by the sovereign people of Missouri
instead of: Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of Missouri.

The referendum is another part of this same system.

With the referendum in force, if the legislature passed a law that was obnoxious to the people or that the people considered unjust or oppressive or if the legislature gave away for little or nothing a valuable franchise that the people did not want given away, then 10 per cent of the voters of the state could within 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature sign a petition demanding that this law be referred to the vote of the whole people of the state, and under the provisions of the referendum this law would be printed on all the ballots at the next general election, and if approved by a majority of the people then and then only would it become a law. But if rejected by a majority of the voters then it would become void and the legislature would be marked voted by the sovereign people of Missouri.

These two principles, the initiative and referendum, combined in our constitution
would constitute the system known as direct legislation.

Everybody can easily judge by the above
that it would be a complete and specific cure for the corruption that has invaded
our political life.

Nobody will try to bribe those who will
no longer be able to deliver the goods.
After the adoption of the referendum the whole people alone will be able to make final deliver of franchise, etc.

Prof. J. R. Commons, the well-known professor of sociology and political economy, said: "The greatest issue before the American people today is 'bribery.' No reform movement, no citizens union or the like can fully cope with it. The referendum alone is a complete and specific cure for this condition. It alone goes to the source of corruption. It deprives legislators and executives of their monopoly of government and the power to sell. After the adoption of the referendum they will no longer be able to deliver the goods."

Hon. Joseph W. Folk said that if the referendum had been in force in Missouri
there would have been no need of his boodles prosecutions because there could not have been any booting.

All those who are in sympathy with his efforts to purify our politics should vote
yes on this constitutional amendment at the next election. WM. PRESTON HILL.

day you'll bring your father's gray hairs

"No danger," replied young Wakely. "I have not any." Worrying about me has made

THE OUT-OF-TOWN CORRESPONDENT.

BY REUBEN JASPER,
Special World's Fair Correspondent.

To the Editor of the Hayville Herald.
ST. LOUIS, June 7.—I don't think I will ever want to see the Pike again. Great guns, Mr. Editor! It has been nothing but Pike, Pike, Pike with me for the last two weeks, and enough of a good thing is enough, as the kid said when he got fondered on rock candy.

I seen everything, from the Gelsa girls to the dromedaries, and I'm here to tell you right now that while the Pike is a beaut, I am a-goin' to cut it off of my visiting list in the future hereafter.

I lost seven pounds in one week, a chain-then American Press Humorists up and down that now celebrated thoroughfare and attempt to keep up with the pace set by this here Jack Kearney and this here Thomas R. Mackenzie—two of the liveliest mortals that ever come down the Pike—ha, ha! there's another one of them doggone jokes of mine—and I'm here to say to you, Mr. Editor, that home ain't nothin' like this.

The late Mr. Tennyson once remarked that he would prefer twenty years of Europe to a cycle of Cathay, and I'm here to observe this afternoon that when I am a-feelin' right you can just give me

one week on the Pike and take Hayville
for the next four centuries.

Hayville, in her palmyest days, never dreamed of no such glories as to be-seen on this here Pike. No, siree—not even when old John Robinson's circus was at the height of its fame, or when they used to have them tightrope walkin' a-Saturdays across Perry street between John Flanagan's place and Lee's drug store.

Another thing that pleases me mightily is the Observation Wheel. When I first went out there I didn't think so much of it, for I says to myself: "Oh, this thing
ain't nothin' more than a big merry-go-round. Why, I'll bet that you can't get to more of a thrill a-ridin' on that big mass of mettle than you can by sittin' and a-watch-
in' the wheels go round on Cap'n Bradley's towboat at Cairo."

Well, Mr. Editor, that was the time I got footed. I finally decided to try 'er a whirl, just for a look, just the same as you put your money into a slot machine, never expectin' nothin' in return, and dog my cats if I didn't get a sensation that'll hold
me for all time to come.

The more I looked at that wheel and the higher up in the air I got, the more I says
to myself—just like a feller does when he stands outside and studies the stars—
"Well, mankind is about the littliest thing
I know of."

I send you a picture of myself as I looked to myself a-standin' there with the glories
and the beauties of the World's Fair all around me.

Damn my buttons, but I half believe that I'll get converted to the notion that the World's Fair is a big thing if I keep on a-hangin' around St. Louis.

What I have already saw of it beats
Hayville to a fare-you-well.

The Wolf, in Fact and Fable.

What are the two most widely known animals of the world—those of which some sort of mental picture is most easily to be produced in the minds of the greatest portion of the world's population? We should say, perhaps, the lion and the wolf. Of course, the latter is most generally accepted
in the history of the world as the inspiration of human terror. The wolf is more fearful of humanity than any other animal.
No doubt we of today inherit that dread
from ancestors who had occasion to fear the long-fanged quadruped, for there are few portions of the world today where
the wolf is really dangerous to mankind.
Dangerous to man's pocket, to his herds
and flocks, he is still today in many portions of the country. A ranch in Montana or New Mexico may pay many hundreds of dollars a year for gray wolf scalps. Such a scalp is cheap at $12 or $18 to the rancher for the gray robber would certainly have destroyed many times that value in calves or colts from the range. Yet in spite of all the warfare made upon them,
and all the prizes put upon their heads,
these dreaded, mysterious, ghostlike, terror-inspiring creatures still hold their own. Outcast for ages, hated, persecuted, they still endure, each for himself, and without a friend on earth, even among his own kind. Last year the state of Minn-sota paid over $2000 a month in the best of the wolf season. One day of the month of last March the state auditor paid $123,500 in wolf bounties. The total for the few months preceding was $245,000.

This year the current year will foot up nearly as much as the two years preceding, which appears to indicate that brother wolf is holding his own even as a matter of commerce. In many parts of the western cattle range, the gray wolves are increasing rather than decreasing. Field and stream for June.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
What kind of "endless chain" scheme is Gov. Francis trying to work to get the Fair advertised? Is nobody to know anything about it until he or his neighbor comes and sees it? Why has he lost all faith in newspaper advertising? GEO. MARTIN, Florissant av.

SORRY FOR THEM.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Allow me to express my heartfelt sympathy for one of the intense. While I am not concerned in any way whatsoever in social affairs, do feel sorry for anyone in such a high social position, and so much refined that they should not have been endowed with intelligence. J. H. GORROTE.

AUSTRIAN PAVILION OPEN TO THE PUBLIC.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Great numbers of persons apply to me for entrance cards to the Austrian government pavilion in the Exposition. I should be glad to be very grateful if you would mention in your paper that the pavilion is open to the public without restriction.
Imp. Roy. Commissioner General.

OVERWORK INJURIOUS.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Your very timely editorial upon "Overwork Is Injurious" is as a glimpse of an oasis upon the burning sands of the twaddle of a modern life.
You have "nailed" the old fallacy that "a change of walk is as good as a rest" and shown that moderation and relaxation make far a more rational life.

I have noticed that overtrained athletes succumb to the malady which are seldom fatal to those with a little reserve strength.
And I don't suppose it makes much difference to the overtraining instrument whether the tune is "Work, for the night is coming"
or "Always try to be the man behind." J. H.

THINKS CITY PEOPLE IGNORANT.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I am a "Hayseed," a "Rube," or whatever you wish to call country people.
I am doing the greatest of Fairs and doing it thoroughly.

In conversation with the people upstairs, I learned that some of the family of eight had been out to the Fair. Next door is another family of seven, none of whom have visited the Fair.
An acquaintance named four families living in the block. None whom have been out. All of these people receive a fairly good income. What is the matter?
Can this "waiting-to-be-shown" attitude of the larger majority of city people be the cause of city misgovernment? The people
I have talked to on local and state issues are—to speak plainly—absolutely ignorant.

Then, why should I be ashamed to be called a "Hayseed,"
"Rube," or any other old thing that distinguishes me from the
"dense" city people. "HAYSEED."

ADVERTISEMENT BY SURPRISE.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
President Francis certainly has a strange idea of effective advertising and its results, judging from his recent telegram to Secretary Shaw. In answer to that gentleman's inquiry as to why advertising publicity was not being secured for the Fair, he says, in effect, that the sum total of his advertising policy is to depend on the "exclamations of admiration and interested surprise" on the part of visitors. People who happen to come will first be surprised out of their boots; they will then go home and talk about it. But if he is right, all the big stores of St. Louis are wrong in the way of advertising. They have been told that the public Why do they not simply put their goods on the counter and depend on the chance of a visitor who happens to be passing?
In general, why does anyone use printer's ink and paper in advertising his business if it can be done free by word of mouth?

Let the word of mouth be the basis of advertising. The people show that they have very little conception of the Fair to begin with? Do they not show that the work of the publicity bureau has been inefficient?
Within two months I have had well-informed people, no farther away than the state of Ohio, ask me, "Your Fair will be about like Buffalo, will it not?" and they have looked at me with incredulity when I told them that it would be six times as large as the Buffalo Exposition, much larger than Buffalo and Chicago both combined.

This one foundation fact should have been made familiar to the public months ago, instead of waiting for one visitor to come,
and the visitor, go home and tell his neighbor.
As a citizen of St. Louis, zealous for her welfare and earnestly anxious for her success, I have been trying for months to find out what was responsible for the fact that this greatest of all Expositions was being conducted with such secrecy.

Mr. Francis plan might perhaps answer, if the Fair was intended to last two or three years. But it is not. One-sixth of its period of existence is already gone. And the average paid attendance has been much over 30,000 a day. We must have such already over 100,000 behind Chicago. It is time to look matters squarely in the face. W. C.

THE PORTO RICAN TEACHERS.

What a School Superintendent Has to Say of the Conditions in His District in Porto Rico.

From the New York World.

In one of the smaller districts in the mountains which cross Porto Rico is where one of the two skirmishes between the Spanish and American soldiers took place. This territory comprises the school district of Coamo. The school superintendent of that district has some interesting things to say of teachers and their efforts to bring the expedition to the United States for summer study. He says:

"The trip is being looked forward to with the greatest expectancy. Those who will be unable to go are plunged in sorrow, while all of the teachers who can possibly afford to devote one month's salary to the fund which is being raised to meet the expense, even at the cost of great personal sacrifices, are living in anticipation of the event which will be the most notable of their lives."

"An intelligent Porto Rican observed that most of his fellow-countrymen who travel abroad like Spain and the rest of Europe, and all are delighted with Porto Rico upon their return. But those who go to the states become Americanized. They not only like the American people and ways, but they return to their native homes with a desire to be Americans. It is the same feeling that makes excellent American citizens of the foreigners who come to this country."

"These Porto Ricans have a confused idea of America. Most of them feel rather indifferent toward us. They are very anxious to see for themselves the manner of being of the American people. The only way they can ever become Americanized is by visiting this country. Certainly no class could influence and educate public opinion in Porto Rico to a better understanding of what it means to be an American than the teachers of the public schools."

Preferred Him to a Monkey.

A merry story is told of Judge Beekman Winthrop, formerly a judge of the court of first instance in the Philippines, who has just been named by the President for the next governor of Porto Rico, says the New York Times.

The judge is a Harvard man and a valued member of one of the old New York families. An anti-superstitious female was worried about reports reaching this country concerning the dislike the Filipino woman has for the Yankees, so she said: "My dear judge! You are so chivalrous. Didn't you feel the slight put upon you by the native women? I've heard that their hatred of their conquerors is so great they are positively insulting."

"On the contrary, madam," replied the judge, bowing, "they are most solicitous. Why, a high-caste Manila lady deigned to push her pet marmoset off the divan so I could sit beside her!"

Living in Porto Rico is high and the salaries are low in comparison, and paid during only nine months of the year. Each teacher was asked to contribute one month's salary toward the fund which will pay their expenses on the trip. The United States government gives the use of two army transports free, and Harvard and Cornell will receive the teachers under favorable terms. The substance aboard the transports and while in the states must be paid, as well as the cost of instruction and the traveling expenses to several points that will be visited. The trip to Washington and visit to the White House, where President Roosevelt has promised to receive the teachers, will be a noteworthy and memorable event in their lives.

In addition to giving one month's salary toward the general fund, each teacher must provide herself with a sufficient sum to pay her personal incidental expenses on board, lodging, cost of instruction and travel, and the drain on their meager incomes is great. There is no scrambling, however; the sacrifices are cheerfully made.

It is hoped that the American people will also avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing these new citizens how hospitable and generous are the people of the great nation they are now a part of. They should be welcomed and treated as the Cuban teachers a few years ago. Subscriptions are being raised for the necessary funds in Philadelphia, New York and Boston.

Subscriptions in any amount may be sent and will be duly acknowledged by Col. Henry L. Higginson, 44 State street, Boston, Mass.; Charles S. Fairchild, National City Bank, 32 Wall street, New York City; Henry Tamm, Franklin National Bank, Broad and Chestnut streets, Philadelphia, Pa.; or Samuel M. Lindsay, commissioner of Education, San Juan, Porto Rico.

Chinese Magistrate's Old Boots

Visitors to China are particularly struck by the numbers of pairs of boots hung in separate wooden cages in the archway of the main west gate of Huanhua, the valedictory gifts of benevolent prefects. It is an attractive custom in China to invite a departing magistrate whose rule has been popular to leave a pair of old boots for suspension in a prominent place as a hint to his successor to follow in his footsteps. It is a considerable honor to be asked to leave these boots, and the people make the request with the more eagerly because they believe in the efficacy of the hint.

From the Chicago Tribune.
The detective who had run down and captured the bank robber, stood in the corridor of the jail talking to the prisoner.
"Well, my sonablower," he said, "I guess that name fits you. I've got you safe, anyhow."

"That's all right," growled the prisoner. "You're a safe blower because I can't get at you."

CAUGHT IN THE RAIN

A Policeman's Finger Tapped Clayton Sharply on the Arm.

As the weather had been fine for quite half an hour people had donned their light spring clothing and had sallied forth into the park, feeling spruce and merry. They sauntered about, however, with undignified haste when a sudden downpour of rain came from nowhere in particular—for no one had noticed any clouds—transforming most of them into mere masses of drenched misery in less than three minutes. Lily, her head bent forward against the wind, and with both hands holding her wind-driven skirt, started to run toward the Grant monument. Not many yards had she gone when she collided with Clayton, who was scurrying toward the park corner.

"I beg your pardon," said he.
Lily stood still, her back to the wind and her wavy golden hair blowing prettily over her shoulders and framing her flushed face.
"You!" she exclaimed.
Now he was standing still, too. They stared confusedly at each other, neither knowing what to say.

"I thought," he ventured at last, "that I had nearly killed somebody. I sincerely hope— But there, I'm forgetting the rain and you've no umbrella. Hi, there—you with the tent! I'll give you $5 for it!"

This is a ragged old man who, nevertheless, seemed to be comparatively happy, having a misshapen but inviting umbrella. "Done!" cried the old fellow, jumping eagerly at the bargain. "It ain't much of a beauty for promenading, sir, and mebbe it ain't worth so much, but—"

"It is to me!" said Clayton. "Here's the money. Now," turning once more to Lily, "let's find a more sheltered place."

"Well, then—um—er—O, yes! Have you seen Miss Gertrude Terry lately?"
"I have, very lately. I tell you I like Gertrude Terry tremendously."

"I know you do. It's an old attachment." She made a proud but unsuccessful attempt to free her arm from his.
"Why, shouldn't I like her?" he continued. "I'm to be the best man at her wedding next month. She marries my friend Bentley."

Lily unconsciously breathed a sigh of relief.
"Aren't you happy, alone here with me, Lily?" he queried, with sudden and uncontrollable tenderness.

"Goodness! There's a perfect stream running down this slope. My skirt is all draggled!"

"What a thoughtless fool I am!" he exclaimed. "Here, step up on this bench." He helped her upon the bench, and took his place beside her, and both laughed like children.

"I wouldn't part with this umbrella now for a million. Why, where on earth is your engagement ring, Lily?"

"What has that to do with this umbrella?"
"Answer me. You must. What has become of your ring?"

"I'm sure I don't know what he did with it, after I sent it back to him."

"Then you're not—You're free!" Silence.
"Lily, guess what I'm going to do."

"Don't you dare! Remember, you said when we parted you would never forgive me for firing with Wilfred. That's why I grew reckless and engaged myself to him. That's why—"

"Hang Wilfred. I'm about to kiss the tip of the prettiest ear in Chicago!"

"If you do I'll never forgive you. Besides, I don't want to be kissed."

"Well, you need not stand so far away, if you do hate me."

He took her arm and pulled her, ever so gently, toward him.
She noticed, as she leaned nearer, that his heart was pounding violently, but hoped he was not as observant of the fluttering of her own.

"I suppose Wilfred Gray would begrudge me these few moments with you if he knew."

"Let us talk of something impersonal," said she, "the rain, for instance."

"Don't you find that a sufficiently dampening subject already?"

they can see us plainly from the boulevard."
"I don't care if the whole world—"

A nondescript, weebsome woman, with a soddan hat, its limp black feathers trailing mournfully across her cheek, suddenly made her appearance in front of the bench and paused shiveringly, as if anxious to remain in the company of two beings so warm and happy looking in the midst of all the bleakness.

"I'm stranger here. Won't you please tell me the way out of the park?"
"Certainly, madam; go that way," replied Clayton, pointing anywhere.

The Easy Mark.

From the Somerville Journal.
We like the man of jovial mien
Who greets us with a smile,
We like to meet the honest man,
Frank, simple, free from guile.
We like the bright man, but the man Whom we all like best to see
Is the man who gives up cheerfully
When you strike him for a V.

The pleasant man has hosts of friends,
Who wish him joy and health,
The rich man has his flatterers,
Who profit by his wealth.
We all admire the brilliant man,
But the best of all, say we,
Is the man who gives up cheerfully
When you strike him for a V.

Then here's a health to the jolly man,
Who always makes us laugh,
And here's long life to the friendly man,
Who labors in our behalf.
But best of all is the Easy Mark,
Here's to him—three times three!
To the man who gives up cheerfully
When you strike him for a V.

Overflows the Only Drawback—Cool Weather Retards Crops in Lake Region.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The weekly government crop report says: "While too cool for best results in portions of the lake region and in the Missouri valley and northern Rocky mountain districts, with excessive moisture and lack of sunshine in the central Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys, the week as a whole has been very favorable in the districts east of the Rocky mountains. Events in the south Atlantic and east Gulf states have been very generally favorable, though more local is settled in portions of Florida and in the central and west Gulf coast districts. The north Pacific coast also experienced favorable weather but in California nearly all crops were injured by continued dry weather."

Over the western portions of the corn belt the growth of corn has been checked by lack of warmth and sunshine, and it is much in need of sufficient moisture in scattered localities. In the southern states the general condition of corn is promising, although it is needed in the central Gulf coast districts.

Wheat has been suffering somewhat from heavy rains in portions of Oklahoma and Minnesota, though more or less favorable in the rest of the wheat belt. The eastern portion of the winter wheat belt continues unpromising, though more or less favorable in the Ohio valley and middle Atlantic states. Wheat is now heading in the central Mississippi valley. In the southern states the general condition of corn is promising, although it is needed in the central Gulf coast districts.

WOULD PREACH TO GET VOICE BACK

Youth Stricken Dumb While Blapheming, Now Believes There Is a God.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SHREVEPORT, June 8.—In religious and medical circles the progress of the case of Julian Renfro of this place who was stricken deaf and dumb in Chicago last Tuesday night after he had challenged Providence to a demonstration of the Supreme Power, is being closely followed.

With several physicians in constant attendance upon him, the hope was expressed today by his mother, who is a Christian and church-going woman, that the boy ultimately will recover the use of his faculties.

If he does, he announces in a written communication that he will at once seek to fit himself to join the ministry. For Renfro, since his arrival here from Chicago, has completely changed his views, and is inclined to daily as much by a clergyman as by a physician.

In religious circles it is felt that his condition is due as much to his blasphemy as to nervous attack, and the church-going people unhesitatingly declare that if he ever does regain the use of the impaired faculties it will be because he has confessed conversion and repentance.

The circumstances of Renfro's attack were most dramatic. He was employed in a Chicago tannery as a shipping clerk. Last Tuesday night, while working, he engaged in a game of whist. The conversation turned on religious topics, and the young man expressed a firm belief in God. Renfro scoffed.

"I would believe in God if I could," he said, "but I have read a great deal of Ingelow's writings and am unable to have faith."

"Why, there are manifestations of God all about you," suggested one of the young men. Renfro scoffed.

"Fellows," he said, "if God would demonstrate Himself to me in some way, for instance, He should strike me deaf or dumb or blind. I might admit His existence."

With the words on his lips the young man turned pale, his arms shot out in front of him, and his face began to move convulsively, but no sound proceeded from his mouth. He began beating his hands and the next instant he fell face forward on the floor unconscious.

In alarm his companions ran for a physician. Renfro was restored to consciousness some without much difficulty, but it was then discovered that he was deaf and unable to utter a sound.

O. G. Draper, diagnosed the case as one of nervous attack, and though Renfro gradually regained his strength, the use of his faculties appeared to be shattered, and it was decided to send him here to his mother.

The silence which surrounds him everywhere turned his thoughts inward, and he had not been here a day before he made a request for a Bible. Since then he has been devoting his time to the study of the Scriptures.

Renfro wrote the following statement of his case today:

"At the time I lost my hearing I saw a beautiful light in one corner of the room. It reminded me of the light in the midst of this light there appeared an angel. I tried to see the scene perfectly, but then disappeared as suddenly as it came."

"I told my friends that unless the God they believed in would strike me deaf and dumb I would not believe there was one. Almost as soon as I finished the sentence the power of speech was taken away from me, and a few minutes afterward I was unable to hear anything my friends were saying, nor was I aware of any noise going on about me. I was stricken so suddenly that I have been unable to remember what happened. I tried to address my friends but that was impossible, and since that day I have been unable to hear or utter a word."

"Now I am sure there is a God and have every reason to believe that God wants me to work for him. From now on I shall spend my life in His service. I am confident of getting all right. I believe my powers will be restored, and on I shall spend my life in His service, which I was relieved of them."

Her Idea of the Busy Bee.

The young daughter of a prominent New York financier, who has passed most of her years either in the city or at her large summer resort, recently said her first visit to a real country home. She was anxious to show that she was not altogether ignorant of rural conditions, and when a dish of honey was set before her on the breakfast table she saw her opportunity.

"Ah," she observed, carelessly, "see you keep a bee?"—Harper's Weekly.

Weather Helps Indoor Theaters

In days of old, when men could mold a proverb every minute, And man's hot air had very rare Philosophy within it, Somebody rose and said there blows No wind, however ill, That does not spin the tinkling tin Into somebody's till.

That was very true. This week the weather is unusually cool for June, and many a warm weather enterprise is chilled through and through. But it is very fine weather for the indoor theaters, and it has braced up the box receipts wonderfully. This is a better week in the theaters than was last week, and the theatrical people are encouraged.

"A Country Girl" is wiggling up its engagement at the Olympic, and many visitors to the Fair are enjoying this excellent musical production. "A Girl From Dixie" is in its first week at the Century, and there is quite a good deal of enthusiasm for it. The music and the bright life of the piece have fascinated many, and the performance is being recommended very cheerfully.

The Indian ballet, in connection with the picturesque entrance of Pontiac in his canoe down the river in the Delmar Garden "Louisiana" is creating complimentary comment among theatergoers. This is, however, not the only one of good things to be seen in the Delmar "Louisiana." The ballet, and the songs of the adriatic sailors are both catchy numbers. Other songs that are making a name for themselves are "The Things We Used to Do," and "My Louisiana."

There was one bull-fight which came off according to schedule, last night, without any police or other interference, and that was at the Dream World, at the entrance of the Delmar Garden, where an exceedingly interesting performance of a most average battle between a bull and lion was given. So faithfully was the reproduction shown that the audience was highly enthusiastic at the close. The conditions will continue to be given each night this week at Iroquois World.

Large audiences still greet "Quincy Adams Sawyer" at the Crawford Theater in the fifth week of its run. The company and its patronage seems to increase instead of diminishing. The company has made the record of the week in its long stay, and could continue for weeks to come. The company is entirely cool and comfortable these evenings, and is one of the best ventilated playhouses in the city.

Members of the National Brewers' Association have been invited to attend the performance at West End Heights Thursday night of the "The Obert Revue," owners of the Heights, have issued 100 invitations.

Underlined for next week at Mannion's Park, starting Sunday, are Charles Colby and Alie Way, novelists; John A. West, musical comedian; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Burch, illusionists; Thelma Walesek, acrobats, and Ferguson and Passmore, singers and dancers. The Giant Toboggan Slide is fast becoming very popular. Mannion's Park is now in the daily matinee class.

Members of the Salt Lake amateur theatrical company, with which Maude Adams made her recent visit to her native city.

James J. Corbett is in the city, seeing the "Painted Village" and the "The Obert Revue," and is expected to return to the city.

Millie James, who is Mrs. Edgar Stachelsberg, has retired, and Charles B. Dillinger has been unable to induce her to return to the stage.

"Nat" Goodwin is generously gratified at the success of his wife, beautiful Maxine Elliott, first season as a star—a season which has been much less propitious for himself. Or Mr. Goodwin's company is Neil O'Brien, whose wife, Eva Havemort, carries off first female honors in "The Yankee Consul." As advice came from the metropolis, the husbands on the road compared newspaper accounts. This was their chief solace last seven weeks of the tour, which was made up of one-night stands.

One morning the two met in the stifling hall of an up-the-state hotel. Each held a handful of clippings, laudatory of his absent spouse and her metropolitan scorings. According to custom, they solemnly exchanged them.

"Nat" Goodwin reflectively rubbed his eyes. He picked the couple of live ones, didn't we?"

Clyde Fitch, in playwright, collects in scrapbooks specimens of the errors foreigners make in dealing with strange tongues. One of Mr. Fitch's scrapbooks is devoted to French-English to the sort of English that Frenchmen sometimes use. The new edition was made to this volume the other day. It was a French tutor's a certificate, clipped from a London newspaper, and it ran:

"A young Paris man shall desire to show his tongue to classes of English gentlemen. Address," etc.

De Wolf Hopper has a slight cold the other night, and in a certain speech he referred to it in the following terms: "I went to my doctor," he declared, "and the doctor said I had been eating too much of the wrong kind of food. Since then I haven't been able to eat at all, for I don't know what either word means."

"The Fashion, like Time, waits for no man. I prefer to be in advance of it."—Beau Brummel to his Valet.

It may be too early for Straw Hats, but ours are ready.

Our English Walking Coats are cut on advanced lines and they have found favor this season.

FRESH AIR FOR BEER AND HEALTH

Herr Drutschel, Advocate of No Underclothing, Comes to Save America.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The most picturesque passenger arriving on the Kaiser Wilhelm II from Bremen was Herr George Drutschel of Lichtenfels, Bavaria, the advocate of no underclothing and no shirt.

Herr Drutschel, who wears only trousers and sack coat, and a big cane and a large black felt hat, is bearded and long-haired. He looks as strong as a giant. The top-most four or five inches of his chest is bare, and the skin, weather and sun hardened, is as red as a pumpkin.

Herr Drutschel has come over seas to introduce his cult of hardening the body, curing rheumatism, bad circulation, shortness of breath and headache by bathing, gourd-planting and "nothing but nature." He is the shirtless advocate terms his religion.

Herr Drutschel says he was 11 until he was 30 years old, with various doctors prescribing to no purpose, and that he did not obtain health until he shed, within six months, his overcoat and flannel underclothing and took cold baths in the open air.

Herr Drutschel has brought over a choice assortment of his aphorisms, among which are: "A large and well-ventilated hall is necessary to drink beer in. Do not remain here long, but for several times leave it and go out of doors to breathe in fresh air."

"The more a person wraps himself up in his clothes, the thicker will be the veil over his brain."

"Many men sacrifice rather their health than their aches and pains."

"Man ought to be able to drink after beer and wine and vice versa—just so far as eating and weather are concerned; in rain, storm or sunshine, always to be in the open air—then man shall be like a pine tree, green in summer as well as in winter, full of life in cold and heat and wind-storms."

"The best meal without sufficient fresh air is worse than a poorer fare with good air."

"Eat whenever you are hungry; drink when you are thirsty; time does not matter. Pure air is for the stomach like a newly-sharpened grindstone to grind corn with."

"While drinking beer you ought to eat some cheese and dry bread (no butter upon it)."

"It is still more wholesome to drink beer in the open air, which will prevent you so easily getting drunk or intoxicated, as the result of bad air in a close room."

Excursion to Cairo, Ill., 25-Via I. C. R. R. By Sportman's League, Saturday, June 11. Train leaves 11 p. m., East St. Louis 11:30, Belleville 11:55.

ALAS! ONLY NEW YORK MAY SEE MRS. FISK HENCEFORTH.

NEW YORK, June 8.—It is announced that next season the Manhattan theater is to be the home of a permanent organization of players, headed by Mrs. Fiske. The venture is the result of the recent dissolution of the Independent theatrical companies, which will release the theater from the agreement heretofore made by the members of that organization. The announcement was made today by Harrison Gray Dyer, president of the organization, who had so far progressed that a number of well-known English and American actors have been engaged and a partial list of the plays to be given arranged. In addition to the revival of several of the plays in which Mrs. Fiske is well known, a number of Ibsen and Maeterlinck plays will be produced. It is also planned to give a subscription series of interesting classics.

DeLacy's French Hair Tonic Restores Gray Hair to Its Natural Color—Your Money Back If It Fails.

REV. J. SCOTT CARR, Pastor East St. Louis Congregational Church, says:

I have used DeLacy's Hair Tonic for Restoring Gray Hair and it did the work for me. My hair was more than half gray, but 2 bottles of DeLacy's Tonic restored it back entirely—hence I feel it is a Christian duty I owe to send my endorsement to such a meritorious remedy as I have found DeLacy's to be.
